THE MORNING'S NEWS.

WASHINGTON.

Marine Legislature.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The Senate Committee on Commerce today agreed to recommend the passage of Mr. McMillan's (Rep., Minn.) bill to reduce the fees of inspectors for examining and licensing the masters, engineers, mates, and pilots of steam vessels to fifty cents each, instead of five or ten dollars respectively, as authorized by the existing law.

Senator Coke's (Dem., Tex.) bill to regulate inter-state commerce and prohibit unjust discriminations by common carriers was today taken up and referred to a sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Coke, Miller, of New York, and Kellogg.

The House Naval Committee.

The House committee on naval affairs today decided to devote the sessions during one week to hearing members of the Naval Advisory Board and such other persons connected with the Navy Department, and such shipbuilders and manufacturers of steel and iron in the United States, as the chairman may deem proper to call, upon the subjects of the best model and material for the construction of new and armored vessels of war. The time for the hearing will be determined upon hereafter. The members of the committee will visit Admiral Porter in a body some time next week for the purpose of inspecting the Ericsson torpedo models.

Star-Route Prosecution.

W. W. Kerr, late Assistant District Attorney at Philadelphia, has received a telegram from Attorney General Brewster, requesting him to come to Washington to assist in preparing the bills of indictment in the Star Route cases.

FOREIGN.

An Indian Conspiracy.

CALCUTTA, Jan. 19.—News of a conspiracy in Nepaul, against British residents, has reached Khatmanda. The plot was discovered at the last moment. Eighty notables have been arrested, and twenty-one military officers have been summarily executed.

Fire in a Circus.

PESTH, Jan. 19.—News has been received here of the destruction by fire of the Circus Kremsier at Bucharest. The flames spread so rapidly that it was with the utmost difficulty that any who were in the establishment when the fire broke out could escape, and when it was under control, the discovery was made that many men and horses had been burned. Intense excitement prevailed during the conflagration, the horrors of which were added to by the fearful struggling and howling of the beasts in the menagerie, opposite to the circus enclosure. Many of the beasts were terribly scorched by the heat and made desperate by their efforts to escape from their cages. The loss of property is very heavy.

Arrest of an Outlaw in Ireland.

CORK, Jan. 19.—At the Cork Assizes today, the outlaw leader pleaded guilty to the various charges against him. He will be a witness in the other cases, in which members of his band are defendants. At the time of the arrest, in the latter part of December, for having arms in his proclaimed district, Connell was already suspected of being the leader of a band which had committed outrages, rendering the district of Millstreet one of the most notorious in Ireland. His arrest took place at Masha under exciting circumstances. A large force of police, acting on private information, surrounded the house of Thomas Shea, a farmer living in a lonely district near the Mushra Mountains. Upon knocking, the police were admitted, and two of them rushed up stairs and found Connell in bed but dressed. He endeavored to divest himself of a waistcoat, but the police, after a fierce struggle with him, obtained possession of the garment, and found in one of the pockets a gold watch, stolen from a man named Cudmore, during a recent moonlight raid. They also found in his possession a list of persons who had committed offences against the unwritten law of the Riband Society, and who were consequently marked for vengeance. The list is signed and countersigned with fictitious names, and concludes thus:—

"Examined and approved of as work for the night squad. Captain Moonlight."

Among the intended victims were James Sullivan and Dennis Coakley, farmers who were to be shot on suspicion of paying rent, and Sullivan's two daughters whose hair was to be cut to the bone, one for having spoken to a policeman, and the other for dealing with a proscribed person. Other persons were mentioned whose ears were to be cut for lesser offences. In consequence of the documents found on Connell five young men were arrested in Mill street, named Kelleher, Conner, Leahy, Farrell and Hurley. Farrell and Leahy have been identified as belonging to a party implicated in an attack on the house of Mrs. Fitz Gerald.

ARREST OF GENERAL CARR.

The Charges Against Him.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—No official report has been received at the War Department in reference to General Carr's arrest. Private advices received here by officers are to the effect that the charge is intemperance. It is understood that General McDowell, who is in command of the Division of the Pacific, wrote to Washington for instructions, and took action upon the advice of President Arthur.

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 19.—The relatives of General Carr, who has been placed under arrest at Tucson, Arizona, by order of the President, have received a despatch from him, stating that he is ready for any kind of trial or investigation. General Carr further telegraphs that the charges against him are disrespect, misstatements in complaints to a higher authority, and disobedience of orders and misconduct of the Indian campaign.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The report telegraphed here recently from the West to the effect that Gen. Carr, of the Sixth Cavalry, has been put under arrest by order of the President, is said by Gen. Carr's friends to be incorrect. He was arrested by order of Gen. Wilcox, his Department Commander, for alleged disrespect and disobedience of orders. His friends here understand that the arrest is an outcome of personal feeling between Gen. Carr and Gen. Wilcox, growing out of criticisms in Arizona papers of the latter's management of the Apache campaign.

A Fearful Tragedy.

CLINTON, Mo., Jan. 19.—The house of George G. Smith, at Lewis, five miles north of this place, was burned at three o'clock this morning, and five of the inmates perished. Their names are as follows:—Elizabeth Smith, aged 17; Rachel, aged 13; Ella, aged 6; Theodore, aged 16; and the mother, aged 43.

The fire is supposed to have started from some clothing hanging by the kitchen stove, or from an explosion of coal oil. Mrs. Smith was the first to awaken, and she aroused her husband, who made his escape with one of his daughters, aged about eight years, and the little girl of a neighbor who was spending the night at the house. Mr. Smith and his daughter were seriously burned.

Condensed Telegrams.

George Ladd, of Elmore, Ohio, sued R. K. Scott, ex-Governor of South Carolina, in the Court of Common Pleas to recover $10,000 damages to his wife, whose son, Warren T. Drury, was killed by the ex-Governor on Christmas day in 1860. The case has been compromised by Scott's paying the costs and $500.

Mr. T. H. Crittenden, a prominent banker of Bridgeport, Conn., shot himself at his residence yesterday. The ball entered his mouth, and passed upwards into the brain. The cause of his act was a peculiar disease which at times affected his mind.

Governor Cornell, of New York has reprieved for three weeks Martin Flanegan, sentenced to be hanged at Buffalo today.

There is excitement almost amounting to a panic on the Paris Bourse.

Steamship Kansas, of 5300 tons, was launched at Glasgow, yesterday, for Warren's Liverpool and Boston service.

The hanging of George Bohannan, which was set for today at Rolla, Mo., will not take place, the Supreme Court having granted him a new trial.

The National Rifle Association, U. S. A., has received from the National Rifle Association of Great Britian terms for a military match between the National Guard, U. S. A., and the Volunteers of Great Britain, the match to take place in Wimbledon in July next.

Twenty new cases of small-pox were reported in Pittsburgh yesterday.

The Brooklyn Board of Education refuses to accept Mr. Beecher's retraction of recent charges, pronouncing it "entirely unsatisfactory."

Gregory Sternom, a merchant of Petersburg, Va., convicted of receiving stolen goods, was yesterday sentenced to receive twenty stripes at the public whipping post.

A conference of the various trunk line managers was held in New York yesterday, at the offices of Pool Commissioner Fink, when it was understood that the railroad war was discussed. All information as to what transpired was kept secret.

Frank Goodwin, a young man now in jail in Worcester for burglary has confessed to the murder of a companion named Brown two years ago.

John J. Thompson, a telegraph operator formerly in charge of the Western Union office at Mobile, Ala., was arrested at Newark yesterday charged with embezzling $12,000 from the Western Union Company.

Piles! Piles!! Piles!! No One Need Suffer. A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams (an Indian remedy), called Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 years' standing. No one will suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. WILLIAMS'S INDIAN PILE OINTMENT absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice; gives instant relief, and is prepared ONLY FOR PILES, itching of the private parts and nothing else. Read what Hon. Judge Coffinbury, of Cleveland, says: "I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams's Indian Pile Ointment. SCOVILLE STILL TALKING.

A Day of Random "Argument" in the Guiteau Trial.

Mr. Scoville's Vehement Attacks on Mr. Corkhill and Others.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Mr. Scoville in his argument complained that the prosecution had failed to call Detective McElfresh to the stand, and the natural inference was because his evidence would have been of service to the prisoner.

Colonel Corkhill—"We called a man who was with him. You say you wanted to prove by McElfresh what the prisoner said on the way to the jail. Now we had upon the stand an officer who rode with McElfresh and the prisoner to the jail. Why didn't you get all you wanted from him?"

Mr. Scoville, in reply, read from the evidence of the witness mentioned by Colonel Corkhill. "I did not speak with him, but McElfresh talked with him all the way to the jail," and added, "This is sufficient answer, I think, to your last remark and sufficient reason why we should complain that you have deprived us of this very material evidence which would have shown precisely the language and the mental condition—so far as can be judged by the conversation—of the prisoner at the very time of the shooting."

Mr. Davidge—"Then why didn't you summon these witnesses yourself?"

Mr. Scoville turned quickly and replying with some vehemence of manner, was interrupted by Colonel Corkhill (with a mock deprecation). "Oh, please don't scare him."

Mr. Scoville—"I'm not attempting to scare any one. At this stage of the trial I don't imagine any one will be easily scared on either side." Mr. Scoville read from the various letters and documents written by Guiteau at the time of the shooting, and in which he alluded to and explained this act, and argued that it was an utter impossibility for a sane man, with a motive for so bloodthirsty a deed, to have written and talked as the prisoner did in relation to it.

Mr. Scoville again called the attention of the jury to what he had before charged, that the prosecution had suppressed every particle of evidence bearing upon the first two weeks after the shooting. They had destroyed the notes of their interviews with the prisoner, and had introduced no evidence but what they thought would aid the prosecution and help to hang the prisoner; but accidentally—(Guiteau, interrupting, "And providentially—put the word providentially in, please.") Mr. Scoville continued:—"But accidentally and providentially, I might add, we have the testimony of Dr. Young; and I will say here if the prosecution in their final argument should attempt to show that it was an afterthought with the prisoner to claim inspiration for his act, you have a right to take all these things into consideration."

Guiteau—"They came to my cell and tried to draw me out. I talked with them a little and told them about the Deity, and my inspiration, and now they suppress all that evidence. That shows the iniquity of this prosecution, and God Almighty will curse every one on this prosecution, in my opinion." After a short pause the prisoner added:—"That reminds me to say that Judge Porter has been pretending to be sick for two days. I hope it will be providential to keep him sick. I hope the Lord will take him below quick and then send for Corkhill."

As Mr. Scoville proceeded Colonel Corkhill made frequent and, as the speaker evidently thought, slighting comments, until finally becoming irritated he turned upon the District Attorney and denounced in scathing terms his unfair conduct, and instanced his production as evidence in this case of a letter written by the prisoner and which he (Corkhill) had intercepted and mutilated by cutting off the signature and such portion as he thought might benefit the prisoner. "A thing," said Mr. Scoville, "which was never before permitted in a court of justice, not even upon the trial of a civil suit."

As Mr. Scoville continued, counsel for the prosecution frequently interrupted him, and a running fire was kept up between counsel for some time. Upon one occasion Colonel Corkhill explained:—"I interrupted you because you were not stating the truth."

Mr. Davidge (rather contemptuously)—"Oh, he's just making a little capital before the jury."

Mr. Scoville—"Yes, I am making a little capital."

Mr. Davidge—"Well, please make it quick."

Mr. Scoville continued:—"I am making a little capital here and a little there, and am doing it as fast as I can get properly over the ground." The speaker disclaimed as his main motive the desire to shield this man for the honor of the Guiteau family. If, however, he could by his efforts stay this mob influence which would rush to the scaffold this insane man, this mob spirit which Mr. Davidge had so lauded; if he could stay this influence until reason and judgment return to the consideration of this case, then would he accomplish what was of still more account—save the American nation and the American judiciary from the disgrace of hurrying to the gibbet an insane man.

Mr. Scoville then proceeded, going apparently over the same ground he had once before traversed to show that the prisoner's morals had been correct and his life proper up to the point when, as he (Scoville), claimed the evidence pointed to unsoundness of mind. He denounced the Oneida Community and their vile practices. The defence could not summon any of these people as witnesses. "But," said Mr. Scoville, "with the telegraph and all the powers of the Government at their back, if there had been a single immoral or vicious act on the part of the prisoner during the six years he was in the Oneida Community, this prosecution would have produced the witnesses to show it."

Colonel Corkhill (sneeringly)—"That's your opinion, merely, Mr. Scoville. It amounts to nothing as a fact."

Mr. Scoville—"Well, let it be my opinion. I presume I am entitled to one, and so is the jury."

Guiteau (with energy)—"It was a friendly allusion to President Arthur that he cut out—the mean, dirty whelp."

Counsel for the prosecution continually badgered the speaker, who as frequently digressed from his argument to respond. As a consequence the thread was so often broken that it was a matter of some difficulty at times to detect any logical sequence in the argument.

After the recess Mr. Scoville discussed the assumption that Guiteau might have been actuated by a desire for revenge, and argued the improbability of such an assumption from the fact that, if any ground for ill-will existed on Guiteau's part it was against Secretary Blaine, and according to the inexorable laws of the mind it would have been executed against him. There cannot possibly be shown, said Mr. Scoville, any ill-will on his part toward President Garfield.

Col. Corkhill—You seem to forget that he killed him.

Without noticing this comment, Mr. Scoville next took up the hypothesis that the crime was committed from an overpowering desire for notoriety, and claimed that history failed to point out a case where such a crime was committed purely and simply from such a motive, and that it was incompatible with reason, and impossible for the human mind to conceive of such a motive sufficient to induce any sane man to commit such a crime. That he killed the President as a disappointed office-seeker, is more than improbable, said Mr. Scoville, for had he brooded over some wrong of this kind, something of his disappointment would have cropped out. Mr. Scoville alluded to the taunt of the prosecution that the experts for the defence had gone back on them, and said in explanation, that when he reached Washington he did not know the name of a single expert. He knew that Guiteau was crazy, but how to show it to the country and to convince a jury of his countrymen, was the burden that pressed upon him.

Mr. Scoville severely criticised the course of Dr. Worcester, and classed him with the "government conspirators."

The court, at 3.15, adjourned until to-morrow.

It is understood that the defence will, at the conclusion of Mr. Scoville's speech, renew the motion to allow the prisoner to address the jury, and will ask to be heard in support of the motion. The effect of this, if permitted by the court, will be to consume another day, allowing two days for Judge Porter, and it is more than probable that he will require three. The case will hardly get to the jury before Wednesday next.

SHIRTS AT FORTY-FIVE CENTS A DOZEN.

A widow, who feared that the wholesalers for whom she works might take her work from her if the Herald should publish her name, visited the Herald office yesterday and exhibited some shirts for making which her two daughters are paid forty-five cents a dozen. "We got along," she said, "and paid our rent until my youngest boy was hurt and lost his situation, but since that time we have not been able to pay our rent and have had to move from place to place. My oldest boy sends us what money he can spare, but our main dependence is upon the twenty-three cents a day that we get for half a dozen shirts. We live about four miles from Fulton Ferry, and my youngest boy walks to the ferry and crosses in the one cent hours to get the work from the New York dealers, and the next day, with half a dozen shirts in his arms, he goes to New York and gets the money. I am no longer able to work the sewing machine that we have hired, and it is breaking my daughters down. My youngest son, who is nineteen years of age, has tried in vain to get work, and we have all tried for months past, but unsuccessfully, to get money enough to take us back to the place we dwelt in four years ago." The widow's husband died seventeen years ago, leaving what was estimated to be a handsome fortune; but the lawyers, she says, took every dollar of it long ago.—[N. Y. Herald.

NEWPORT DAILY NEWS AND THE NEWPORT JOURNAL.

The Newport Daily News is published every afternoon (Sundays excepted), at the News building, 137 Thames street, by Davis & Pitman.

The Newport Journal is published at the same office every Saturday morning and contains a selection of the best matter in the Daily, including editorial discussions of the topics of the week, literary miscellanies and at least one good story, and a complete and comprehensive summary of news,—local and general. The Journal is a large 36 column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from the city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12 cents a week payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 50 cents is made when the whole year is paid strictly in advance. These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer.

Notices of births, marriages and funerals 50 cents each.

Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed but five insertions in a week and are allowed twenty-five changes a year.

The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both News and Journal a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

PRINTING.

The News has four steam presses and is a large and well appointed job printing office. All orders for work in this department will be promptly filled, and at reasonable prices. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

Newport Daily News.

The disorder prevailing in the Guiteau trial is not noticed so much now that Congress is in session again.

They are not worrying about the ice crop at St. John, N. B. The mercury reached 28 degrees below zero there the other day.

From reports to the Bureau of Statistics it is estimated that the total number of immigrants arrived during the calendar year 1881 has been 719,000.

Mr. Scoville is very kind to prolong his argument in order that Mr. Porter may be quite recovered from his illness and prepared to make a crashing argument.

Bismarck's complete conversion to the bi-metallic theory, after having sent his country to the opposite extreme of mono-metallism, proves him to be a weak economist.

The Century magazine for February appears without the "Scribner's" subtitle, with a new and beautiful cover, and with uncut leaves. Each of these changes is an improvement.

The House of Representatives spent yesterday in "jawing." It is better that it should do so than that it should pass any very large number of the 4000 bills which have been already introduced this session.

The Taunton Gazette remarks that after a few more accidents from gross carelessness a law requiring a railroad ticket to be an insurance policy for $10,000 would find plenty of advocates.

The Albany Journal says—"In our day, a party without offices in possession or in expectancy would make about as poor a fight as an army without rations." This is true, and it is the shame of American politics.

A man appeared in a San Francisco court the other day with a motion to quash the proceedings whereby an executor had been appointed over his estate. He denied that he was dead. The man's identity was not questioned, but it is not stated what legal obstructions and technicalities the lawyers put in the way of the man's proving that he was not dead, or whether the court had to take the question under advisement and consult the authorities.

Thomas W. Keene's performance of Richard III. will be a notable one in Newport's theatrical annals. Mr. Keene is a young actor of unquestionably high talent. The writer a few years since saw him play Edgar to Booth's Lear in such a way that he deserved and obtained a greater share of the applause than the great actor whom he supported. Keene's chief fault is a tendency to follow too closely the school of which Booth may be called the head. He has too great a talent, however, to be always an imitator, and will doubtless develop a higher degree of individuality.

Two new English grammars for Mexican learners of the "Gringos'" tongue have appeared in Mexico during the past few months. The Mexican merchants now speak English for the most part, and the whole nation seems to be going into the study of our language. By the time that Mexico is covered with a network of American railways, and the people have learned the "American" language, and have also learned to conduct town meetings on the American plan, the country will be ready for annexation to the United States. It will not be found advantageous, however, for us to swallow the country in larger pieces than we can digest comfortably. Some of it, in New Mexico and Arizona, still lies a little heavy on the national stomach.

Neal Dow recently told a Land League meeting at Portland:—"I think I am right when I say that, if the Irish people had a fair chance of success, they would be justified by the general opinion of mankind in an attempt to wrest the independence of their country from a nation that robbed their fathers of it most unjustly and cruelly."

In the Senate yesterday Mr. Davis's bill retiring Justice Hunt was passed. The Sherman funding bill was discussed. Mr. Windom opposed the bill on the ground that it was not necessary. Mr. Windom defended his action while Secretary of the Treasury in continuing the 6 per cent bonds at 3½ per cent., which Mr. Hill said was unconstitutional and a usurpation. The House devoted the day to the discussion of Mr. Robeson's proposition for an increase of committees. The whole matter was finally referred to the committee on Rules.

Municipalities, governed under universal suffrage, are like children who have to be ruled by a strong superior hand in everything that relates to their financial affairs. Philadelphia suffered from a long season of extravagance, and a year ago the state legislature had to interfere, passing a law which compelled cities to do business on the "pay-as-you-go" system. Since that time the debt of the city, which had reached the enormous figure of $70,023,430, has decreased to $68,829,403, showing that the city is on the right track financially. The city of Chicago had a similar experience, although the pressure was applied in the shape of a provision of the new state constitution, when the city's debt had reached $15,000,000. Cities were prohibited from increasing their debt beyond a certain proportion of their assessed valuation, which put a stop to Chicago's borrowing.

Holders of 6 per cent. bonds which have been continued at 3½ per cent. should not be too much elated by Senator Hill's declaration that the continuance was illegal and that the unpaid 2½ per cent. can be claimed at any time. It may be claimed, no doubt, but it will be another thing to collect it. As far as legislation is concerned nothing can be hoped for, as a proposition to pay the "bloated bondholders" another 2½ per cent. would probably be so unpopular that not even Mr. Hill himself would be willing to vote for it. But Mr. Hill's idea is that it is not a matter for legislation, and that the amount may be recovered in the courts—doubtless by means of a suit of bondholders against the Secretary of the Treasury for withholding the amount over 3½ per cent., since the government cannot be sued. Mr. Windom's refutation of this claim in his speech yesterday would seem to be conclusive, but it is quite possible that the question of the constitutionality of Mr. Windom's action may yet be brought before the Supreme Court.

An excess of mercy brings justice into contempt, and the frequent pardoning of the worst class of offenders robs the law of half its terrors. In the respect of pardons issued the record of the Democratic governors of New York is much worse than that of the Republicans. The pardon records of the Democratic governors, since 1870 were, Hoffman, 122; Tilden, 96; Robinson (three years), 246. Governor Dix pardoned 65 criminals during his entire term. Governor Cornell during his first year pardoned 38 criminals, and in 1881 none. In the matter of restorations to citizenship, Governor Cornell also takes a conspicuous position. Hoffman granted 272 restorations, Dix 59 Tilden 197, Robinson 563, and Cornell has granted only 29. The wholesale pardonings and restorations by the Democratic governors were no doubt intended for vote-making, for not only the pardoned criminals but all their relatives and friends would be sure to vote for the lenient governor and his party forever after.

MRS. WOOLSON'S SECOND LECTURE.

Mrs. Woolson delivered the second lecture of her course in Muenchinger's hall yesterday at 12 o'clock.

The subject was Chaucer, his times, and his predecessors. Mrs. Woolson first reviewed whatever of literary effect can be found among the earliest inhabitants of Britain, showing that the Kelts could claim little or no place among writers of any note.

The Saxons, who followed them, were by no means rich in literature, but a few works still in existence prove that learning was not entirely dormant among them. The Romance of Beowulf, a nameless and heathen epic, was written before Christianity was introduced among the Saxons, and is a striking picture of dim old Gothic days, full of minute and soul-stirring descriptions.

Cædmon's Paraphrase, written about 650 A. D., is a story of the creation and other Scripture incidents, from which Milton no doubt drew many of his ideas in his plan of Paradise Lost.

Alfred the Great was the leading writer of Anglo-Saxon prose, and he translated Latin works into the Anglo-Saxon tongue. After touching briefly upon the wonderful narration of his travels by Sir John Mandeville, and the poetry of the "Moral Gower," both contemporaries of Chaucer, Mrs. Woolson dwelt for awhile upon the name of John Wycliffe, "the Morning Star of the Reformation," who gave to England the first English version of the whole Bible. But the nucleus around which the lesser lights revolve is Chaucer, the Father of English Poetry, classed with Dante and Petrarch as the great poetic triumvirate of the Middle Ages. Chaucer's greatest work, the Canterbury Tales, was not written until he was sixty years old, and consists of a series of pictures of middle class English life during the fourteenth century. In discussing this remarkable poem, the peculiarities of the Anglo-Saxon tongue were pointed out, and its resemblance to the German noticed. Mrs. Woolson believing that the modifications which have tended to convert Anglo-Saxon into our present English speech, may also be looked for in the German language at no distant date. A change in the form of the letters, the loss of inflections, and the reduction of the difficulties of much of the spelling, the lecturer prophesied will as surely be the future fate of German words as it has been of the Anglo-Saxon. German is simply behind the times.

After a few brief remarks on philology, and warm eulogies on the reign of Edward III., and the character of his wife Philippa, the lecture closed leaving the audience at the beginning of the fifteenth century, where the subject will be renewed next week.

A larger number were present than assembled last week, and much interest was expressed in all the topics introduced during this lecture.

—Alfred Smith sold today to Hettie Gracie Wheeler, the Shephard estate on Kay street.

—The Savings Bank of Newport will pay a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. on and after tomorrow.

—Mr. E. L. Winthrop and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Francklyn sailed in the Servia for Europe on Wednesday.

—Mr. J. J. Carry is making some important improvements to his place of business on Thames street.

—Mary B. Weaver has sold to W. P. Sheffield, Jr., all her right in the Perry Weaver estate on Coddington street for $300.

—Union Lodge No. 668, Knights of Honor, are to have a social entertainment at Odd Fellows' Hall on Tuesday evening next.

—The third lecture in the course at Rogers High School will be given tomorrow, at 12 M., by Rev. C. A. L. Richards, of Providence. Subject:—"Walter Savage Landor—His Life and Works." All interested to attend are cordially invited to do so.

—J. Neilson Howard & Co. have sold for Mr. W. H. Ashhurst a lot of land on the south side of Cranston avenue to Mrs. J. Amory DeBlois upon which she will immediately commence building a cottage. Anderson and McLean will be the builders.

—The novel display in front of Mr. James A. Eddy's store in the shape of a pyramid of "welcome soap," reaching from the sidewalk to the top of the building, attracts the attention of all, and shows good taste on the part of this enterprising merchant.

—Thomas W. Keene will appear in Richard III in the Opera House on Saturday night of next week. Mr. Keene is acknowledged to stand among the best interpreters of Shakespeare's tragedies and, with good support, the event will be a conspicuous one in the drama in this city.

—A young man applied at the Police Station last night for lodgings and said he was a tramp without any means of support. He desired to be sent to the State Farm where he would be sure of a comfortable home. As the authorities had no evidence on which to commit him, he was sent to Providence, where he said he belonged, this morning.

—It has been decided to have a sale of useful and fancy articles, the proceeds to go toward carpeting and furnishing the First Methodist Episcopal Church when the repairs in progress are completed. The ladies of the congregation will take the matter in charge and it is hoped to make the occasion both enjoyable and profitable. The time and place of the sale are not determined.

—Captain Irish has received the naval order of merit for assistance rendered the officers and crew of the Spanish sloop-of-war Pizarro off the Delaware breakwater in September 1878, from King Alfonso, of Spain in recognition of his services. The facts have already appeared in our columns. By a special act of Congress he has just been allowed to accept the gift which was tendered a long time ago.

THE SOCIAL UNION.—A meeting of the "Social Union," an organization of young people, was held last evening at Mr. Samuel Haddock's on Broadway. The attendance was good, E. O. Riggs president. There were readings from Shakespeare and also miscellaneous readings by Isaac T. Haddock, of Fall River, together with music and other interesting and pleasing exercises.

TIVERTON.

Cards of invitation to the wedding ceremony of Mr. William F. White, of the firm of White Brothers, of Pawtuxet, and youngest son of Christopher White, Esq., of this place, with Miss Olive C., daughter of the Rev. W. H. Sturtevant, of Tiverton Four Corners, are out. The ceremony will take place at the Congregational Church, Tuesday evening, Jan. 24th, at 8 o'clock, and will be followed by a reception at the parsonage.

"FLORINEL."

The romantic drama of Florinel was presented at the Opera House Thursday evening with Miss Julia A. Hunt in the title role. There was a good attendance, but many of those in the gallery did not seem to appreciate the sentimental portion of the drama and in a great measure prevented others from enjoying the charmingly written and well presented play. Miss Hunt is a bright and most entertaining actress and will be sure to be a great favorite wherever she appears. Her support was excellent, while the costumes are rarely equalled outside of the large cities. The play is destined to be very popular. It is written in a very entertaining manner. The scene is laid in France. The leading characters were personated by Miss Emmie Wilmot (Countess De Mauvert) Miss Marie Bockell (Marcelle, her step daughter) Miss Fanny D. Rouse (Duchess D'Arolles) Mme. Ivan C. Michels (Florinel's foster mother) Miss Minnie Conway (Claudine, for whom Florinel innocently suffered banishment from her home and no end of misery) R. W. Turner (nephew of the Duchess) and Charles S. Dickson (her son). Miss Hunt has every reason to be proud of her first appearance at Newport for she met with a very enthusiastic reception and was called before the curtain at the end of the third act.

MORE CROOKEDNESS.

A draft for $150, bearing the signature of T. M. Seabury, drawn on the Union National Bank, Newport, was presented here for payment yesterday. The genuineness of the signature, if it was intended for that of T. Mumford Seabury, was promptly denied and payment refused. It was drawn to the order of Franz Miller and endorsed with that name. On sending information of the facts to Providence, whence the drafts came by express, steps were taken to ascertain, if possible, the real name of the author of the paper, but we do not learn that definite results have yet been reached. There was, evidently, no attempt to imitate the signature of Mr. Seabury so far as the style of signature is concerned and the whole is yet a mystery.

FUNERAL OF A PRIEST'S MOTHER.

The funeral services of Mrs. Keegan, mother of the Rev. J. Keegan, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, were held in that church in Providence, Thursday morning and were very largely attended. Mrs. Keegan died in this city. Her remains were taken to Providence Wednesday afternoon and placed on a bier erected in the central aisle of the church, on the sides and at the head of which were a number of lighted wax candles. Shortly after 10 o'clock solemn high mass was celebrated, at which Rev. M. McCabe, V. G., of Woonsocket, was celebrant; Rev. P. F. Doyle, Woonsocket, deacon; Rev. J. Smith, Centreville, sub-deacon, and Rev. T. Carroll, North Easton, master of ceremonies. The following clergymen were also present in the sanctuary and assisted in the ceremonies:—Rev. Fathers Keegan and O'Connell, of the Immaculate Conception; McDonough, Coyle, Stang, Cathedral; J. McCabe, J. Walsh, St. John's; M. A. Wallace, LL.D., J. Cook, St. Michael's; C. Hughes, J. Harty, St. Patrick's; R. J. Sullivan, J. Murphy, W. Meenan, St. Mary's, Providence; L. Deady, M. McCabe, J. Gormley, J. Briscoe, W. Clark, Fall River, Mass.; H. F. Kinnerney, T. Grace, J. Farrolley, Pawtucket; T. Mahoney, Central Falls; D. Driscoll, Valley Falls; J. K. Beaving, Taunton, Mass.; J. Carrigan, Slatersville; J. O. Hare, Crompton; E. Finnigan, Wanskuck; M. McCallion, Warren; J. Rogers, Bristol. The musical portion of the services was given by the regular choir of the church. The Gregorian Chant was rendered very impressively. "Jesu Mei," by Mrs. Fidge and Mr. Donnelley, was sung at the Offertory. The burial service was read at the conclusion of the mass by Rev. Father McCabe. The body remained in the church until 1.15 o'clock from the conclusion of the mass, and was visited by the congregation in large numbers. The floral offerings which were placed on the casket, consisted of a pillow with the word "Mother," and a wreath of ivy leaves and wheat. Shortly after 10 o'clock the funeral procession was formed and the remains conveyed to the depot and placed on the 2.10 train for Woonsocket, where they were interred in the old Catholic burial ground.

OCEAN PERILS.

The Bureau Veritas publishes the following statistics of maritime disasters during November 1881, concerning all flags:—

Sailing vessels reported lost:—27 American, 1 Austrian, 89 British, 4 Danish, 5 Dutch, 11 French, 16 German, 2 Greek, 4 Italian, 50 Norwegian, 3 Portuguese, 1 Russian, 2 Spanish, 6 Swedish; total, 201. In this number are included 13 vessels reported missing.

Steamers reported lost:—1 Belgium, 11 British, 1 Dutch, 1 French, 1 Norwegian, 1 Spanish, 1 Swedish; total, 17.

THE PARTING OF LIEUT. DE LONG AND HIS WIFE.

[As told by William Bradford, the artist, to a Boston Herald correspondent.]

"You were Lieut. De Long's most efficient adviser, were you not?" I asked.

"Lieut. De Long," he replied, "needed and had no more competent adviser than his wife. She is a noble, highly intelligent woman, and like himself, an enthusiast upon the subject of Arctic exploration. She has read and studied everything that experience and science have made known upon that topic, is familiar with the minutest details of every endeavor ever made for the penetration of the profound veil of mystery overhanging that field of most daring adventure. Could she possibly have done so, she would have been most glad to have accompanied him upon his expedition, sharing his hardships, his perils and his fate. That, however, was manifestly impracticable, as she had the good sense to recognize. I think one of the most touching episodes I ever witnessed was the parting between Lieut. De Long and his wife, and I know that the pang of separation was heightened by her regret that she could not share his trials in the heroic endeavor for the attainment of the purpose in which her heart was as much bound up as his. We went out of the bay of San Francisco with a tug following us, to take back those who were to return, and not a word was spoken of the separation momentarily drawing nearer. Finally, when we had got pretty well out, Lieut. De Long came to me and said:—'It is time to go.' A small boat was lowered from the side and manned; he and Mrs. DeLong got into it. I followed them and he gave the order to 'put away' for the tug. During that short trip the silence in the little boat was oppressive, painful beyond description, the only sound being the thump of the oars in the rowlocks, and the swash of the water. When we reached the side of the tug Lieut. De Long pressed his wife's hand and simply said 'good-by.' She stepped upon the tug, and, turning, bent upon her husband a look in which there was expressed the most poignant feeling mingled with a devout silent prayer for his safety and success. For an instant he seemed to hesitate, as if for the moment unnerved by her attitude and look, then, recovering his self-control, turned to his men and in a full strong voice commanded, 'Pull away, men!' Soon their swiftly-plied oars placed him alongside the Jeannette. We saw him mount the side, saw the vessel bear away and watched her in silence until she was a mere speck in the horizon without a word being spoken. Then, finally, when the Jeannette was fading from sight, Mrs. De Long said to me:—'Please let's go below. I want to be alone for a moment.' I complied with her request. Soon, however, almost immediately indeed, such was her power of self-control and I believe, also, her confidence in her husband's ultimate success and happy return to her, that she regained her self-possession and entered into conversation. It was such a manifestation of bravery on the part of a woman as I never saw before and never expect to witness again. But she has never had any doubt, and has none now, of the safety of her husband and his ultimate return to his native land. She was here only a few days ago, and we have been in almost constant consultation, or communication, during the two years or more in which the fate of her husband has been shrouded in obscurity.

THE TERROR OF NAVAL WARFARE.

AMERICAN INVENTORS CONSOLIDATING TO MONOPOLIZE THE WORLD'S TORPEDO SUPPLY.

It was announced yesterday by a telegram from Newport, that a consolidation of all the interests of torpedo patentees working upon the common basis of an electrical system had been effected, and that hereafter they will be combined in one corporation, to be known as the Lay Torpedo Company. Mr. G. H. Reynolds, one of the principal patentees concerned, said yesterday:—"I look upon Mr. Lay as the original inventor of the movable torpedo controlled by electricity. In the course of the many years which he has devoted to perfecting this implement of war, he had drawn around him many skillful mechanics, and some of them have made valuable improvements upon the original Lay torpedo. Among those who have done so are Messrs. George E. Haight, of Hartford, Marcus Hardy, of Newport, R. I., M. Hubbe, of New York, E. W. Kellogg of Hartford, and myself. The various improvements have been directed to reducing the size of the torpedo, increasing its speed, and controlling the firing of it. In view of the many improvements and various interests concerned, Mr. H. D. Windsor, manager of John L. Lay, undertook their consolidation, so that a movable torpedo may be produced which shall combine all these inventions. The combination has been effected, and the boat which will now be built will be very much faster than any built before—not less than fourteen knots an hour; will be smaller and lighter; can run under or on top of the water, as may be desired; can be steered in any direction, and started and stopped at will; can be exploded automatically or at will, as the person controlling it may choose; will carry an exploding force of 100 pounds of dynamite, and will cost only about $15,000. In view of its new and terrible capabilities, there cannot be any question that the movable torpedo is to play a most important part in all future naval engagements.

In regard to explosives, by the way, an important invention has been perfected, and the material is now being manufactured on an extensive scale. This new material is in two parts, each of which is perfectly harmless when separate from the other, one a liquid and one a solid, and only when these ingredients are brought together does it become an explosive. It is a great invention for torpedo makers, for there can be no possible danger in transporting and handling the separate ingredients, and they can be mixed instantly. The mixture is exploded as dynamite is, and is possessed of a force equal to the very highest grade of dynamite. The liquid ingredient is an oil, which will not only not explode, but will not even burn well, at least not as well as kerosene. The solid is a material that looks like tried peat. What they are I do not know, but I do know thoroughly their absolute safety when apart and their explosive power when mixed.

"The movable torpedo is now a success. The original torpedoes had a cable with five wires in it, each one performing a separate function. Now one wire performs all five, stopping, starting, steering, and firing. The combination takes in not only all the American, but all the foreign patents as well—some forty in number altogether—belonging to the gentlemen already mentioned, and if the Europeans want this system of torpedoes they will have to come to America to get them. There are no electric torpedoes in the world but the American. We will probably establish works for torpedo manufacture in New York, as this is, for many reasons, the best place that could be selected, but that has not yet been discussed. We have no orders at present for torpedoes, but as soon as we are ready to supply them can have all we want, not only from our own, but from all the European Governments."—[New York Sun.

CARE OF VACCINATION.

The New York Board of Health has issued the following directions regarding vaccination:—Avoid having a flannel or woolen sleeve or a linen band around the arm, as they irritate it and keep it sore much longer than it should be, and will also prevent the vaccination from becoming perfect. Be careful that the sore be not scratched or torn. Either leave the arm entirely bare or cover it with a thin, loose sleeve of calico or muslin. In case the arm becomes very much inflamed after the tenth day do not poultice it, but keep it covered with a cloth wet with lukewarm water, and it will usually heal very rapidly. Babies should be vaccinated before they are five months old, if possible, so that they may get entirely over the effect of it before teething begins. It makes no difference at what time of the year the vaccination is performed. Vaccination, such as we offer, will always prevent small-pox if attended to in time. If any bad effects appear to follow vaccination, notify the Board of Health, and a physician will be sent to attend the case free of charge.

Who can wonder at the failures in the retail crockery trade when it is considered that a plaque costing $1.75 sells at retail for only $25? In well regulated crockery stores a clerk is instructed to occasionally smash a painted dish, when the master bawls out: "Charge Smith $50, cost of dish broken." The awe-struck customers pity Smith, and gladly pay any sort of price that may be asked.

Ladies who like to be in the very van of fashion would do well at once to begin to train their locks upwards. They may study the styles of the empire period in France, for to those we are coming. The hair cannot with impunity be dragged in a day from its wonted tight compactness in the knot on the back to the top of the head. It needs coaxing and training to induce it to submit to the new position without revenging itself on the head upon which it grows by inflicting a severe headache.

The only characteristic of the empire period in dress, of the revival of which we have as yet seen no premonition, is the short waist. This part of the costume of today continues to be as long as nature may permit. The learned in such matters, however, declare that the present prevalence of the belt indicates a probable shortening of the fashionable waist. If so, the list of symptoms are complete. Hair and waist are going up, skirts are flattening and narrowing, sleeves are puffed at the top and tightening at the wrist, and high heels are disappearing. We shall all look like the portraits of 1814 and 1815 before long. The most encouraging things that can be said about the threatened change are, that it is better than crinoline and inimical to the practice of tight-lacing. [London Truth.

PERSONALS.

......Mrs. Mary Livermore is in Chicago.

......General Hancock expects to visit California in the spring.

......Hon. Thomas L. James, ex-Postmaster General, will be the guest of the Boston Commercial Club at their dinner on Saturday.

......Winslow, the Boston defaulter, is said to be publishing a paper, the Herald, in Buenos Ayres, where he passes under the name of Low.

......Ex-Governor Chamberlain, of Maine, has bought a fine orange grove on the St. John's river, about 100 miles above Jacksonville.

......Edwin Booth denies that there is any truth whatever in the statement now going the rounds of the press alleging that he is to resume theatrical management.

......Oscar Wilde has engaged rooms at Hotel Vendome, Boston, for the 31st. His lecture in Philadelphia brought into the house $1100. He complains that his audience was unappreciative.

......Despatches have been received at Naples from Caprera, stating that General Garibaldi will proceed to Naples as soon as his health permits. The announcement creates great enthusiasm there.

......Ex-Governor Bullock, of Massachusetts, who dropped dead on Tuesday, wrote a letter that day expressing regrets that he could not attend a Webster memorial meeting Wednesday evening on account of the death of a friend.

......Count Franz Thiard de la Forest, a nobleman partly of French and partly of Hungarian origin, died a day or two ago in New York in destitute circumstances. He was 83 years old, could speak seven languages, and had served in the Turkish wars.

......"Perley" writes from Washington to the Boston Journal:—"Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris is enjoying the germans after former English life, but she somewhat horrified the ladies at the last one given by the Bachelors' Club by appearing in red kid gloves."

......At a meeting of the members of the Old South Church in Boston, it was voted to pay Rev. Dr. Manning, the pastor, four thousand dollars per annum during his life. Dr. Manning will seek temporary relief from parochial duties, but there is reason to believe that a rest of a year will find him entirely restored.

......Ex-Secretary Blaine gave a notable dinner party last evening. Among the guests were President Arthur, Governor Leland Stanford, of California, the British Minister, Sackville West, Gen. Sherman, Gen. Hancock, Senator Hale, Mr. Henry James, the novelist, Mr. Thorndike Rice, editor of the North American Review, Mr. Murat Halstead, Mr. Andrew Carnegie and Hon. S. B. Elkins, with many ladies.

Edward King writes from Paris to the New York Evening Post:—"Our American colony has blossomed into an exuberant social life under the inspiring head of the new Minister. The New Year's festivities were numerous, most of them being carried over, in obedience to national custom, from the Sunday, which was January first, to the next two days. Mrs. Consul-General Walker took the lead on Monday, with a "kettledrum," at which there was a great gathering of American beauty and fashion; and on Tuesday Mrs. Morton received the members of the colony in her superb new residence in the freshly-christened Place des Etats Unis. All that has been said of the beauty of this ministerial mansion is not too much. Some grand fêtes will be given there before the fashionable season closes.

At a recent examination in a girls' school the question was put to a class of little ones, "Who makes the laws of our government?" "Congress," was the reply. "How is Congress divided?" was the next question. A little girl in the class raised her hand. "Well," said the examiner, "Miss Sallie, what do you say the answer is?" Instantly, with an air of confidence as well as triumph, the answer came, "Civilized, half-civilized and savage."

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

Dr. Isaac Smith of Fall River Shoots Himself in the Head.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

FALL RIVER, MASS., Jan. 20.—Dr. Isaac Smith, a prominent citizen, shot himself at one o'clock today in the forehead. The wound will probably prove fatal. Dr. Smith was the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Fall River in 1880.

Fire in Fall River.

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 20.—There was a slight fire in the American Print Works this morning under the boiler-room. The fire will interfere with the running of the works but a short time.

Later.

The loss by the fire at the American Print Works will amount to over $5000. The fire caught in the engine room.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, 12 M.—For New England fair weather during the day, followed by increasing cloudiness, light snow, slowly rising temperature, falling barometer.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.

Senate.

The president pro tem. submitted the response of the Secretary of the Interior to the resolution of the 12th instant, inquiring as to the lapsing of the land grant to the North Pacific Railroad, and in connection therewith as to the action of ex-Secretary Schurz. Referred to the Judiciary committee

On motion of Mr. Davis, of Illinois, the bill to permit Judge Hunt, of the Supreme Court, to retire was passed. Yeas 41, nays, 14.

The Sherman funding bill was taken up, and Mr. Windom proceeded to oppose the bill as unnecessary, experimental, and likely to involve the government in loss. He said that if the government continued to pay off its debt at the rate at which the payments had been made in the last six months, the entire $551,000,000 of continued five and six per cents. would be paid off in a little over four years. The bill provided for paying off $200,000,000 of these, leaving $351,000,000. If the revenues continue as at present, the latter amount could be paid off in three years, or less time. Then there would be no bonds that could be paid or called in, as the pending bill denied to the government the option of payment until after five years from issue of new bonds. Thus the government would lose more by being unable to pay off any bonds for at least a year than it would gain by this proposed three per cent. arrangement. When the government has a surplus on hand the bondholder knows it must either lose interest or pay what he chooses to sell his bonds for, and to this extent the government would be at the mercy of the bondholder. He (Mr. Windom) regarded the debt as in better condition with the entire $550,000,000 payable at any time at the option of the government, at 3½ per cent., than it would be with $200,000,000 payable at the end of five years at 3 per cent.

A discussion here arose between Mr. Windom and Mr. Hill of Georgia, the latter maintaining that Mr. Windom's action as Secretary of the Treasury in continuing the 5 per cent. at 3½ per cent. was unconstitutional and a usurpation of power, and Mr. Windom defending his action. Mr. Hill thought that the 6 per cent. bondholders whose bonds had been continued at 3½ could claim the additional 2½ per cent. at any time.

House.

The House resumed the consideration of the report of the committee on rules increasing the membership of several committees.

The question was agreed at great length by Messrs. Belford, Randall, Briggs, Bowman, Robinson, Robeson and Joyce. At one point Mr. Briggs, of New Hampshire, called out "stop that everlasting talk and go to work."

Mr. Robinson—The best remedy here and now is to recommit this subject, get it out of the House and go to work, [laughter and applause,] and then when a gentleman rises and moves to adjourn from Thursday to Monday, vote him down. It is by working hard that we will deserve honor, and not by grumbling and growling because we are not first, second or third on a committee.

Mr. Robeson, of New Jersey, then rose to move the previous question, which he did amid great confusion and with several members addressing the chair at the same time.

The previous question was seconded, but Mr. Robinson, of Massachusetts, complained that he had been trying to make a privileged motion, and that the speaker had not recognized him.

The speaker explained that the gentleman had not stated what his motion was.

Mr. Robinson—No man could state it in such noise and confusion.

The speaker—That was the fault of the House.

Mr. Robinson—But the House is in the hands of the Speaker, and it should be called to order.

Mr. Joyce, of Vermont, moved to recommit the report and all pending amendments to the committee on rules.

The motion was agreed to—yeas, 159; nays, 90.

The Speaker presented several messages from the President in connection with Indiana and army matters. Referred.

Mr. Spooner, of Rhode Island, regretted that one of the earliest duties devolved upon him was the announcement of the death of the late Senator Burnside, on his motion Monday next, at 3 o'clock, was assigned for the eulogies to his memory.

The House then at 4:20 adjourned.

ELECTRIC LIGHT IN THE THEATRE.

Mr. D'Oyly Carte gave one day last week the first performance of "Patience" with the whole stage lit up by electricity. It will, perhaps, less interest the reader to know that two separate engines provide 800 lights for the stage and the dressing-rooms and 129 lights for the auditorium, than to know that the incandescent lamp gives on agreeable, soft, not glaring light, advantageous for the colors and—mind!—for the complexion; gives no heat, flickers not, smokes not, causes no dirt, and last, not least, cannot set fire to anything it comes in contact with, simply because the incandescent wire, heated white, is enclosed in a glass globe from which the air has been exhausted, this vacuum being one of the conditions of the burning. If, therefore, by any accident the globe should be broken, and the flame exposed, the mere rushing in of air would destroy its vital conditions and extinguish it. An argumentum ad hominem was furnished, after a clear and intelligent speech, to that effect, made between the first and second acts by Mr. D'Oyly Carte, who, to illustrate his words wrapped one of the globes in the most inflammable material, tulle gauze, and broke the glass; instantly, instead of burning the gauze, the flame was extinguished.—[London World, January 4.

A resolution has been introduced into the Ohio Legislature, providing that every absentee shall forfeit five dollars for each day's absence, unless it can be shown that his absence was caused by reason of sickness or a death.

There are thirty-seven concerns engaged in the ice business on the Kennebec river, Me., and their houses have a capacity of 1,120,400 tons.

The Old Colony railroad station in Boston is soon to be lighted by electricity.

Oscar Wilde at Baltimore.—His Charge for Being "Received."

Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—A Baltimore despatch says that Oscar Wilde has had a row with the English correspondent Archibald Forbes, and instead of attending the lecture of the latter at Baltimore last night, went on to Washington. A great private reception has been arranged at the capital. An invitation was sent him to attend a club reception, but he responded that he could not attend club receptions except at a cost of $30 a night. The invitation was thereupon withdrawn.

ELECTRIC LIGHT IN LONDON.

The present condition of the electric light in London is;—Streets are now being lighted with it at one-fourth of the price of gas; incandescent lamps can be introduced into every room of any house so soon as the mains are laid; there can be a separate meter to each house: the lamps can be separately lighted, and put out by turning a cock: if one light goes out, no other one is affected; the subdivision is so complete, that there is no glare, and yet a room with incandescent lamps is far more brightly lighted than with an equal number of gas lamps; and an equal amount of candle-power produced by electricity is cheaper than an equal amount produced by gas. In addition, the electric light has no odor, it does not vitiate or heat the air, nor does it, like gas, tarnish paint and decoration.—[Truth.

MR. BUNTHORNE'S APOLOGY.

The question is, are not all these people really and unconsciously doing a great deal of harm? In pretending to laugh down myself, Cimabue Brown, the æsthetic ladies, and half a dozen more of us by name, are they not in fact, though not in intention, trying their best to crush a genuine and important artistic movement in the bud? So far as we ourselves are concerned, I am quite sure not one of us cares a single jot about it. We are prepared to laugh as heartily at "Patience," to look as good-humoredly at Mr. Du Maurier's clever caricatures in Punch, as any Philistine among them all. Nay, more than that; the plays and the pictures are really meant for us to enjoy, and not for the "many-headed beast," which only knows us from these amusing burlesques. Mr. Du Maurier likes to draw an æsthetic interior, so he draws my friend Brown's. Mr. Gilbert likes to fall in with prevailing taste, so he put me upon the stage in "Patience." It is useless to deny it; the man who designed the dragoon's dresses in the lily scene—Mr. Gilbert himself, according to the play-bill—need not pretend that he is not one of us. This is all good-natured chaff of a playful kind; it hurts none of us in our personal susceptibilities; and if we alone, with a select body of friends, were admitted to see it by private-view ticket, no harm at all would be done in the long run. Of course if a man goes to a theatre and sees that the things we have been teaching him to admire are made the butt of some very clever ridicule; if he takes up Punch and sees them invariably associated with the vagaries of impossible ladies and gentlemen in ultra-classical or ultra-Florentine costumes, he naturally comes to the conclusion that the cultivated world only laughs at his would-be teachers. We have been trying to make him understand the place of the early Italian masters in the history of art and now he finds that an admiration for Botticelli or Fra Angelico is apparently considered synonymous with a harmless form of extreme lunacy. We have been trying to teach him that red, orange and sky-blue in large contrasted patches are not the best assorted colors for the interior decoration of his drawing-room; and now he learns that a taste for subdued and harmonious tints is gloomy, and that the persistent use of Mr. Morris's wall-paper may be confidently expected to terminate in an early suicide. We have been pressing upon him the good points of oriental art-handicraft; and now he discovers that we want ultimately to dress him up in a blue coat bespangled with Japanese fans, and to crowd his mantle-piece with hideous images of Indian juggernauts. All this must really tend to retard the progress of the sanitary change, if not actually to turn the tide of public opinion.

A little ridicule outweighs months of preaching. I know myself that there are several excellent people who, on my recommendation, furnished their rooms as though they were meant for rational beings to live in, and bought a little good pottery and harmless bric-a-brac of really pretty and unpretentious sorts to adorn them. But now, when they meet me, they shake their heads and say:—"Ah, Bunthorne, your æsthetes are getting dreadfully laughed at nowadays. Been to see 'Patience,' eh?" And when I go to their houses, I notice that the old blue and the Benares ware is pushed into a corner, while the ormolu monstrosity under a glass-case is replaced in the center of the mantelship, and the big vases with the wriggly green handles are set up once more to mount guard over it on either side. It is no use telling these good people that Mr. Du Maurier and Mr. Gilbert are only joking in a good-natured way; they say:—"No, no; this æstheticism of yours is getting played out." To their simple minds, ridicule is ridicule and nothing else. If it only crushed out the extravagances which must necessarily accompany every great movement one wouldn't really mind. (I suppose there are extravagances, though I confess I myself don't come across them.) But it is also in part crushing out what is truly good and vital in the movement, at least with a large section of the people; and therefore it seems to me a real pity. We were in hopes that we were at last getting the thin end of the wedge into the compact mass of Philistinism: if we are laughed down now, the result must be that the difference in culture between the different strata of our population will be even greater than it is at present. And that surely would be an unmitigated evil, not to be compensated for even by the pleasure of laughing at a clever caricature of my humble personality for a couple of hours to the lively accompaniment of Mr. Sullivan's animated music.—[Pall Mall Gazette.

THE MIDNIGHT TRAIN.

Across the dull and brooding night
A giant flies with dreamy light,
And breath of trembling smoke;
Around him whirls the reeling plain,
And with a dash of dim disdain,
He cleaves the sundered rock.

In lonely swamps the low wind stirs
The belt of black funereal fire,
That murmur to the sky,
Till startled by his mad career,
They seem to keep a hush of fear
As if a god swept by.

Through many a dark, wild heart of heath;
O'er booming bridges, where beneath
A mighty river brawls;
By ruins, remnants of the past,
Their lives trembling in the blast,
By singing waterfalls,

The slumb'rer on his silent bed
Turns to the light his lonely head,
Divested of its dream;
Long leagues of gloom are hurried o'er
Through tunnel sheaths, with iron roar,
And shrill night-rending scream,

Past huddling huts, past flying farms,
High furnace flames, whose crimson arms
Are grappling with the night,
He tears along receding lands,
To where the kingly city stands,
Wrapt in a robe of light.

Hero, round each wide and gushing gate
A crowd of eager faces wait,
And every smile is known,
We thank thee, O thou Titan train,
That in the city once again
We clasp our loved, our own.

SUNDRIES.

"I feel for you deeply," said the hungry man, probing about in his soup bowl for a stray oyster.—[Bradford Star.

Counsel for prisoner—"Did you see the prisoner at the bar knock down the deceased?" Pat—"No, yir honor; he was alive when I see him knocked down."

"Who owns Chicago?" asks the Tribune of that city. This can be more easily ascertained after the eastern mortgagees have foreclosed.—[New Haven Register.

A little boy of seven had been in the habit of sitting with his three-years-old sister in church. Last Sunday he refused to sit in his usual place with his little sister, "For," said he, "folks might think we were married."

At a young ladies' seminary recently, during an examination in history, one of the pupils was interrogated thus, "Mary, did Martin Luther die a natural death?" "No," was the reply; "he was excommunicated by a bull."

Oscar Wilde may, perhaps, be interested in a little family conundrum lately put by a snarling Diogenes. "Who was the first æsthete?" asks the cynic, and answers in the next breath, "Balaam's ass, because the Lord made him to utter."

Lord Erskine had a regular form of reply to those who wrote to him soliciting a subscription, and the form was this:—"Sir—I feel much honored by your application to me, and I beg to subscribe" (here the leaf had to be turned over) "myself your very obedient servant, Erskine."

Nellie has a four-year-old sister Mary who complained to mamma that her "button-shoes" were "hurting." "Why, Mattie, you've put them on the wrong feet." Puzzled and ready to cry, she made answer, "what'll I do, mamma? They's all the feet I've got!"—[Philadelphia News.

"Well, sissy, which of your Christmas presents do you love the most?" and she lifted up for our inspection a lovely maiden clad in pink, with a wax nose slightly rubbed down at the point, one cheek red and the other white, with one remaining eye, "zis one," she replied with a look of pride at its cyclopean visage. "But, sissy, what has become of her eye?" "Dolly swallowed it I sinks when she was sleepin'."

LEES' GAS GOVERNOR

It is automatic in its operation, and once set to any desired pressure the burners need no further watching; the flow and pressure of gas at each burner will not vary by the sudden lighting or turning off of any number of additional burners, nor by any increase of pressure in the mains, no matter how great.

We will connect them on trial and if gas-lles are not satisfied that there is a saving of 25 per cent. at least, we will remove them without cost.

A BRAVE LADY.

She Endures the Pain of a Severe Surgical Operation Without Taking Chloroform.

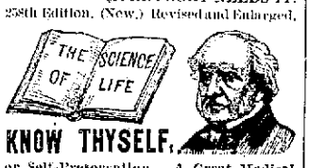

[From the Courier.]

Mrs. Schoonmaker, of Creek Locks, Ulster Co., N. Y., had the misfortune to entirely lose the sight of one of her eyes, through an accident, and endured painful inflammatory action therein for two long years; the other eye finally becoming sympathetically affected, her general health seriously suffering; indeed she was a mere wreck, a walking skeleton. In this terrible strait she consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who told her at once that the injured eye must be removed. She quietly but firmly said: "All right, doctor, but don't give me chloroform. Let my husband sit by my side during the operation, and I will neither cry out or stir." The work was done, and the poor woman kept her word. Talk of soldierly courage! This showed greater pluck than it takes to face a hundred guns. To restore her general health and give tone and strength to the system, Dr. Kennedy then gave the "Favorite Remedy," which cleansed the blood and imparted new life to the long-suffering woman. She rapidly gained health and strength, and is now well. The "Favorite Remedy" is a priceless blessing to women. No family should be without it. Your druggist has it. If not send to Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y. d28-lw

The Science of Life, or Self-Preservation, is the most extraordinary work on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the married or single of either sex can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained. In short, the book is invaluable to all who wish for good health.—[Toronto Globe.

The book for young and middle-aged men to read just now is the Science of Life, or Self-Preservation. It is worth many times its weight in gold.—[Medical Times.

The author of the Science of Life is a noble benefactor. He reaches the very roots and vitals of disease, and is enabled to apply thorough remedies. The book already is read upon both continents by millions.—[London Lancet.

The Gold and Jeweled Medal awarded the author of the Science of Life was fairly won and worthily bestowed.—Mass. Ploughman.

Thousands of extracts similar to the above could be taken from the leading Journals—literary, political, religious and scientific—throughout the land.

This book is guaranteed to do better medical work, in every sense, than can be obtained elsewhere for double the price, or the money will be refunded in every instance.

Thousands of Copies are sent by mail, securely sealed and post-paid, to all parts of the world, every month, upon receipt of price, $1.25.

Winthrop Wrought-Iron Furnace!

Has been in use for the past seven years, and given entire satisfaction. I offer it to the public as the most desirable furnace on the market. Special attention is called to the new dust-flue damper and reversible flues, that are not found in the other wrought-iron furnaces. The dust-flue damper prevents escape of dust when shaking down; the reversible flues cause the flames to sweep the entire surface of the wrought-iron drum, thereby securing much greater radiation of heat, and consequently a great saving in fuel. Cost less to keep in repair than any other furnaces. Are powerful heaters, with moderate consumption of coal. I have sold over 70 in this city. Sold by

BOWER'S TRAPS PUT IN TO ORDER

AN ACROSTIC.

When an aesthetic young lady of town,
Made her way to the shops of renown,
Into Farrow's jewelry store,
Looking his Christmas goods o'er,
Where his "too too" low prices she found.
Oh! then she cried, as she dimpled her chin,
Not too fast, Mr. F., but let us begin.

First of all, here are clocks for $1 or more,
And good timekeepers, too, "Are you sure?
Are you sure?"
Reliable watches, stem wind and stem set,
Remember; six dollars, the lowest price yet,
Oh! oh! oh! What forks and spoons, and Knives for butter;
Why, such ridiculously low prices are "too utterly utter."

Only look at these napkin rings going at cost,
Plated and silver, with bead work and frost;
Those are just lovely, "too beautifully too;"
In the light they now flash, they are so bright and so new.
Can you think of such prices for gold bands
and rings?
It seems that as presents, all are fond of such things.
And these chains and necklets—do tell me
the price?
Now that will suit Nannie, with locket so nice.

Just look at these charms, these pendants,
these pins,
Enough, Mr. Farrow, my head nearly spins,
With the goods, and the prices, your own
kind attention,
Each impression I now so aesthetically mention,
Leaves but one choice, with those who want to buy,
Each Christmas as it rolls around when time
is on the fly,
Remembrances, and other gifts, "thanks,
thanks, most awfully."
